Is Man-Making Sport.

Football is a man-making sport. Any fellow who goes through four years of college football is fit to laugh at the buffets he'll get in the wide world after gfraduation. A good football player has eliminated such things as fear and timidity from his constitution.

You can't play football and be a mollycoddle. And if there is any mollycoddle spirit in you when you begin it'll soon take it out of you.

And that's why football is and always will be the great American sport.

Hogan, of Yale, a few years ago was noted for his gameness. I've seen Hogan standing aside in practice games with the blood streaming over his face from a gash in his scalp, paying no attention whatever to his own injuries and smiling sarcastically as some less hardened teammate was carried off the field with a twisted knee or a dislocated shoulder. Hogan never boasted, but he was very proud of the fact that in all his four years on the 'varsity team he was never taken out of a game on account of injur.es. He always stuck it out until

The game now, however, is improved to a certain extent, and injuries are less frequent. I remember one game, less frequent. THEY are learning some things up on Morningside Heights which are not in the books. Football, for example, while a dangerous sport and religiously tabooed in the matter of arranging a schedule with other colleges, has been made to yield $500 by a series of interclass games, which sum will aid materially in reducing the $2,500 deficit yet remaining in the college rowing department. The students are greatly pleased at the bright prospects, while Coach Rice is said to have indicated his approval by "More power to football!" Because of the financial difficulties there will be no fall regatta at Columbia this season, for the reason that Mr. Rice has only had the freshmen in hand. There are nearly forty men in this squad, however, and while they football the football squad, however, and while they of the financial difficulties as a chip on the shoulders of the coaches and a professional rivalry which only a race between the charges of the two clever coaches could satisfy, and as the students themselves would like a race of some kind, it may be almost set down as the financial difficulties are entirely removed.
